Comic Charlie Murphy is a 'stand up guy'

BROOKS, Calif. – Comedian Charlie Murphy's rapid evolution from "Chappelle's Show" cast member to top-billed international comedian, playing to sold-out audiences around the globe, has been remarkable. He has spent the past eight years performing his critically acclaimed stand-up show and solidifying his position in Hollywood as a true acting and comic talent in his own right.

At the start of his stand up career, he embarked on the national "I'm Rich Bitch" comedy tour, featuring fellow "Chappelle's Show" cast members Bill Burr and Donnell Rawlings. "Charlie Murphy and Friends" and a co-headlining tour with Mike Epps followed. More recently, Murphy co-headlined on the 20-city "Maxim/Bud Light Real Men of Comedy Tour" with Joe Rogan and John Heffron. His current tour includes a performance at 8 p.m. March 5 at Cache Creek Casino Resort's Club 88.

Charlie has worked with top Hollywood talent in a number of feature films, including Denzel Washington, Halle Berry, brother Eddie Murphy, Danny Aiello, Terrance Howard, Gabrielle Union, Queen Latifah, Vanessa Williams, Rip Torn, Peter Falk, Redd Fox, Angela Bassett, Wesley Snipes, Jamie Foxx, Samuel Jackson and Sammy Davis, Jr. He has also produced and starred in a series of webisodes for Sony Entertainment's Crackle.com. and starred in a multi-media advertising campaign for Nike. His autobiography, entitled "The Making of a Stand Up Guy," was published by Simon and Schuster in 2009.

Tickets are available for $99/$89/$85/$75/$65 through Tickets.com on the web: www.Tickets.com, phone: (800) 225-2277 or at www.CacheCreek.com and Cache Creek Casino Resort guest services.
